Brompton appoints Mark Skinner as adviser

Brompton Asset Management has appointed Mark Skinner, former director of retail fund sales and marketing at New Star Asset Management, as an adviser to help develop Brompton's business.

John Duffield, Brompton's senior partner, said, 'We are very pleased to be working again with Mark having worked with him for a decade at New Star.'

Following the sale of New Star to Henderson, Mark became Henderson's head of pan-European distribution between 2009 and 2012. Alongside his new role as an adviser to Brompton, Mark will continue his executive involvement with AMC Executive Search.

About Brompton

Brompton Asset Management was established in 2009 by John Duffield and senior colleagues who worked with him at Jupiter Asset Management and New Star Asset Management. Brompton offers discretionary investment management for investment funds and private clients and direct real estate investment services. Its investment funds comprise funds within the FP Brompton Multi-Manager OEIC and WAY Global ranges. Its services range from the provision of asset allocation and fund selection for model portfolios and risk-graded investment strategies to the management of collective investments tailored to the needs of specific client groups.
