Fund manager's commentary

The Federal Reserve raised interest rates and investors' expectations about further monetary tightening in 2017. Near-full US employment and higher commodity prices are lifting inflation. The dollar gained 1.11% against the pound and US equities rose 3.11% in sterling while global equities gained 3.57% in sterling. The FP Brompton Global Conservative Fund benefited from its holdings in international funds, including those with significant dollar-denominated investments. Rising inflation expectations and bond yields heralded a change of leadership in favour of funds with a "value-investing" approach such as M&G Global Dividend, which typically invests in lowly-valued, cyclical companies in preference to so-called "bond proxies", those stable, cash-generative businesses preferred by investors since the credit crisis. In Tokyo, the dollar-hedged GLG Japan Core Alpha holding benefited from its "value-investing" approach and dollar strength, gaining 7.00% and beating the 3.13% rise by Japanese equities in sterling. It may be hard for active managers to outperform in this environment and the portfolio benefited from index-tracking holdings such as the iShares S&P 500 Financials Sector and iShares Core S&P500 exchange-traded funds (ETFs), which gained 5.02% and 3.08% respectively. Oil rose 7.80% in sterling following agreed Opec production cuts and the SPDR FTSE UK All Share ETF benefited from its commodities bias, rising 5.01%. Among the portfolio's bond investments, Templeton Global Bond and the sterling-hedged Templeton Emerging Markets Bond holding returned 4.84% and 3.64% respectively. The FP Brompton Global Conservative Fund gained 2.37%† in December while the sector gained 1.61%.

Investment policy

The Fund will invest mainly in collective investment schemes, exchange traded funds and unregulated collective investment schemes (which include limited partnerships) and may also include transferable securities (including investment trusts and similar instruments), money-market instruments, fixed income instruments, deposits and foreign exchange contracts.

It is expected that cash, cash equivalents and fixed income investments will make up a significant part of the Fund's assets, in order to maintain its conservative risk profile. However, investments will not be confined to any particular sector.

The Fund may also hold, on a temporary basis, all or part of its assets in cash or other ancillary liquid assets. The Fund may utilise derivatives for the purposes of efficient portfolio management.
